John - I am working on this prior review clearance issue, which is a real problem in many areas. Without a waiver in this case, the project will collapse.

MEMORANDUM FOR: ~~Deputy Director of Central Intelligence~~VIA: Deputy Director for Intelligence
Deputy Director for AdministrationFROM: [REDACTED]
Acting Director of Soviet Analysis

SUBJECT: Soviet Interview Project

1. ACTION REQUESTED: waiver of regulation requiring Agency prior approval of contract-supported publications.

2. SOVA has requested that the DI Contract Team solicit a proposal from the National Council for Soviet and East European Research (NCSEER) for the conduct of Phase 2 of a totally unclassified research study on the Soviet Union based on interviews of Soviet emigrants--the Soviet Interview Project

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] The project has been warmly endorsed by both Admiral Turner and Mr. Casey. Due to academic sensitivities that no longer obtain, Phase 1 was formally administered through the Department of State, which now wishes to relinquish this role. Phase 2 will support important extensions of the work undertaken in Phase 1 and bring to completion analysis that should significantly enhance our knowledge of Soviet society and institutions. There is no alternative practical way of obtaining this information.

3. However, current Agency regulations stipulate that a contract signed with NCSEER must include the following clause:

"The Contractor agrees to submit any proposed publications or other submissions incorporating part or all of any report(s) required by this contract to the Contracting Officer for review and approval prior to publication."

CONFIDENTIAL

This clause would also have to be agreed to by the prime subcontractor, the University of Illinois, and by a host of its subcontractors in academia.

4. The clause has already resulted in the rejection over the past two years of Agency contract solicitations of unclassified research by a number of universities--including the University of Illinois. Both NCSEER and the University of Illinois have told us that they cannot and will not accept the clause, and we believe that this is true.

5. A broader review of the issue of blanket application of the prior approval rule, particularly with respect to unclassified work in the social sciences, will undoubtedly take some time. In the meantime, we request a waiver of this rule as it applies to the SIP project. It has been the understanding all along by all parties concerned with SIP that the Government--whatever authority it has over quality control for reports submitted to it--would not have the power to control outside publication of SIP results. All the work is unclassified, and Agency sponsorship of SIP is now public knowledge; there is consequently no security dimension to the question whatever. Agency insistence on the clause would be rebuffed, and the ensuing likely collapse of this large and prominent project would probably result in a several year delay in publishing the findings. Moreover, it would evoke widespread unhappiness with the Agency in academia and difficulty in arranging future collaboration.

Harry:

Unless you feel there is some compelling reason for sending this to John for signature, it is not necessary. You have the authority to grant the waiver.

Problems associated with giving up review and approval right on contractor publications are obvious. Classified or sensitive information may inadvertently be published, and we will have given up any right to review or control the release. Such an act could result in substantial embarrassment to the Agency. The other side of the coin is that we may insist on review and control of publication but lose the services of academia.

Recommend you grant one-time waiver with caveats: "I have approved, on a one-time basis, a waiver of our regulation requiring prior approval of contract-supported publications. This approval is applicable to the SIP program. Cognizant technical personnel monitoring contractor performance will apply their best efforts to insure that no classified information finds its way into contractor publications."

The broader issue of a blanket waiver is under review by legal and security personnel
